(VIII) war

final agreement to settle the bill with bankers decrepit and reeking of death abstract counting of figures all red on books made of paper the wind turns to wind white words are the names of people as gifts to the sight of honest snipers inanimate statues for broken tombstones planted in blood of vain hopes left to dry up between hymns of peace and speeches? packed with nothing

Guido Comin PoetaMatusèl